

Nikos Burbos

I have been a Consultant Gynaecological Oncologist at the Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital since 2012. I trained in Obstetrics and Gynaecology in the East of England Deanery, including sub-specialty training in Gynaecological Oncology at the Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital. My main areas of clinical expertise include management of patients with endometrial cancer and cytoreductive surgery for patients with advanced ovarian cancer. My research interests include development of diagnostic predictive models for gynaecological cancers and training in surgical techniques in gynaecological oncology.